

Survival of the Smartest: The First 72 Hours

The Boy Scout motto is Be Prepared. This applies to just about everything in life, of course, but in an emergency, those who are at least somewhat prepared for it are much more likely to get through it without serious problems than those who are not. Think of it this way: a man who walks into the wilderness naked except for what God gave him and a man who enters that same wilderness with a backpack full of gear are not on equal survival footing. Its always better to be the guy with the gear.
