

Wall Street Stories (Classic Reprint)

Fullerton F. Colwell, of the famous Stock-Exchange house of Wilson Graves, that he had done his full duty by his friend Harry Hunt. He was a director in a half score of companies financial debutantes which his firm had brought out and over whose stock-market destinies he presided. His partners left a great deal to him, and even the clerks in the office ungrudgingly acknowledged that Mr. Colwell was the hardest worked man in the place, barring none an admission that means much to those who know it is always the downtrodden clerks who do all the work and their employers who take all the profit and credit. Possibly the important young men who did all the work in Wilson Graves office bore witness to Mr. Colwell industry so cheerfully, because Mr. Colwell was ever inquiring, very courteously, and, above all, sympathetically, into the amount of work each man had to perform, and suggesting, the next moment, that the laborious amount in question was indisputably excessive.
